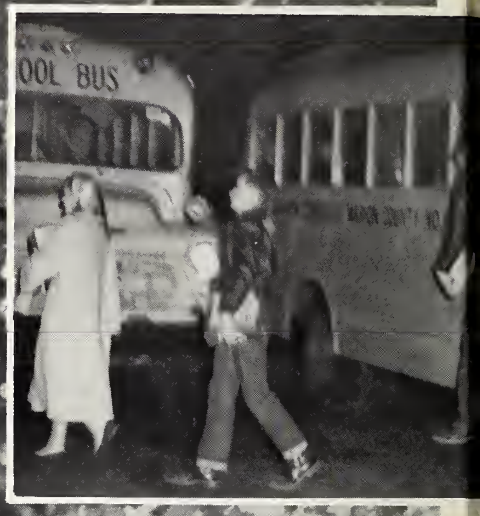
From Registration

To Graduation . . .

Our Year Was Tops

Year's Awakening



Sleepyheads trudge along to 7:30 a.m. class as bus headlights indicate the way.

1957 Wigwam

From the misty early morning ride to school on September 4, registration day, until the cool, balmy evening when the 1957 grads sat quietly assembled in the hot, stuffy gymnasium, our year was "tops."

This year whirled by in a rift of fun and excitement, sleepless nights and strained moments of disappointment.

The usual echoes of gay laughter and fond greetings sifted from the school on registration day. The freshmen hurried nervously from room to room trying to find the class in which they really belonged.

Even the upperclassmen hurried a bit more than usual trying to find who would be in their class and anxiously seeking first choice of seats (preferably near the rear of the room).

Then came the seniors' last day, and the cafeteria cash registers jingled from the sound of pennies, which is the traditional way of paying for lunches on the last day of school before senior week.

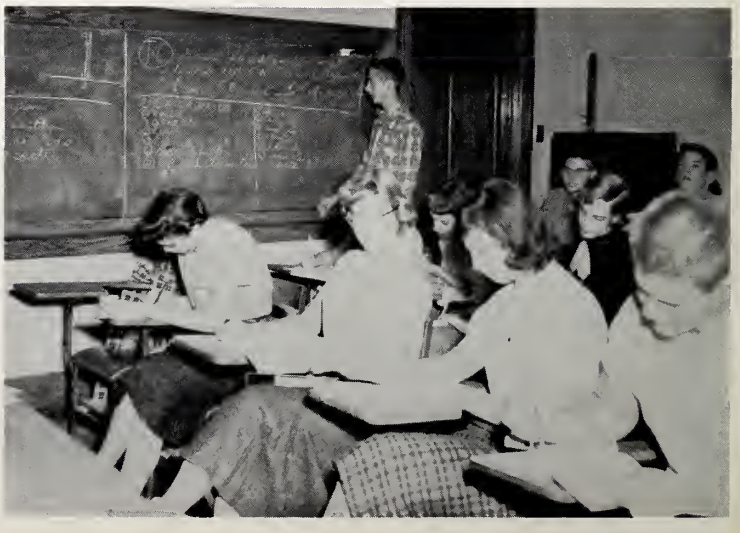
Education : The Most Important

Senior English students switch for a while from Shakespeare's Macbeth to a lighter form of play reading.

This year for the first time, typing students received two credits for their efforts instead of the traditional one as they plan for business and college.



Triangles, protractors, rulers, right angles and that ever-helpful slide rule are familiar companions of everyone enrolled in one or more of the various mathematics courses.

Part Of The Year's Cycle

Science is a completely new field for most, but students doggedly learn valences, symbols and formulas. The skills acquired in these classes provide tomorrow's progress.

The shops not only serve the students but the whole school as well. Boys in various industrial arts classes print programs and club cards, make scenery and many other items for the school and community.

Preparing a complete meal highlights the home economics I classes although this is just one of the many studies. Each year this department presents a fashion show.

We Set The Pace

Bob Ostheimer sports the Hollywood burr while Kay Ernst models the casual fluff. Carol Wierman displays long hair with the "roll" in contrast to Larry Huffman's duck. The flat top, Steve Pyritz, and the pony tail, Sonny Johnson, were ranked as the favorites in head garb.

Ivy league, with the back belt and round-necked sweater, topped the list fashion-wise through the year.

Boys sported flannels, khakis, jeans and the ever-so-comfortable Bermudas Straight, full and pleated skirts held high billing for the gals.

Car coats with hoods and sporty-looking suburban coats with the flat top hat were always in sight at any outdoor activity.

This stag line, Gene Lorenz, Ron Mitchell, Gary Gray and Bob Kidd, display various attire as they wait, hoping for that special date to come along.

With Fancy Fads And Fashions

Jerry Volyes in the suburban coat and Bev Schaub wearing the car coat are all set for that traditional football Homecoming.

In 56 - 57 a big change came upon the teenage fashion world in the form of a little belt. Fred Hartle showing the round neck of the ivy league sweater while talking to Doris Dicks who sports the ivy league skirt.

Whether straight, full or pleated Susie Henline, Sonja Griffin and Bev Staub are all the vogue as far as the teenager is concerned.

Traditions Are Unmarred By Changes

The busiest place in school was the bookstore. Whether it be a ticket for the Friday night ball game, paper, pencils or Kleenex — the bookstore had it. Here Wanda Griffy, Ron Gatewood, Jon Stroh and Dee Loux buy from Doris Dicks.

Besides the regular study hall each period the library serves the school and community as it offers a place for meetings, plays and convocations. During the students' study halls some found time to complete their homework . . . others found it a pleasant siesta time.

On the day before Christmas vacation the choir traditionally carols through the halls, and the madrigal singers entertain cafeteria goers during lunch periods.

Warrenettes and National Beta members under the guidance of Mrs. Harold Rodden celebrated their 25th Anniversary of the Valentine Mothers' Tea on February 8. Daughters escorted their mothers through the receiving line pictured above and then down for refreshments in the cafeteria.

Sonja Griffin records another important happening in the school diary. This diary is a record of all the noteworthy daily events throughout the year.

Struggling through a four-day accumulation of newspapers, the Quiz 'Em Team composed of Trent Anderson, Bill Darosett, seniors; Larry Rood, Linda Palmer and Alan Murray, juniors, was setting its sights on capturing the Lamp of Learning trophy.

Honors, Awards Entice Higher Goals

The week of November 11, Governor George Craig set aside as "Seventeen Week." Jerry Fink was selected by the National Beta Club, and Wanda Griffy was nominated by the Alpha Hi-Y Club as Warren's representatives in the activities of that week.

The ultimate goal of education is the development of good citizenship. Richard Askren, United Nations delegate, and Stephanie Brunke, D.A.R. representative were chosen by classmates and faculty for outstanding character and service.

Sharon Gioe and Mickie Shircliff helped decorate the beautiful Christmas tree to give students a cheerful atmosphere in the cafeteria during this festive season.

This isn't exactly the way to impress a boy, but it's all in fun. Harriett Miller grins mischievously as Bob Blume gets doused.

Other Unforgettable Moments

Various times throughout the year were set aside for students to clean out their lockers. Tom Clay and Janice Howard showed why.

"Woe is me," cried Sara Jane Carter as she left Warren Central with another sleepless night in store for her.

Barbara Behrmann was losing friends rapidly as she kept talking to someone who must be very important. Don't worry, Sandy Fentz and Charles Fox, your time will come.

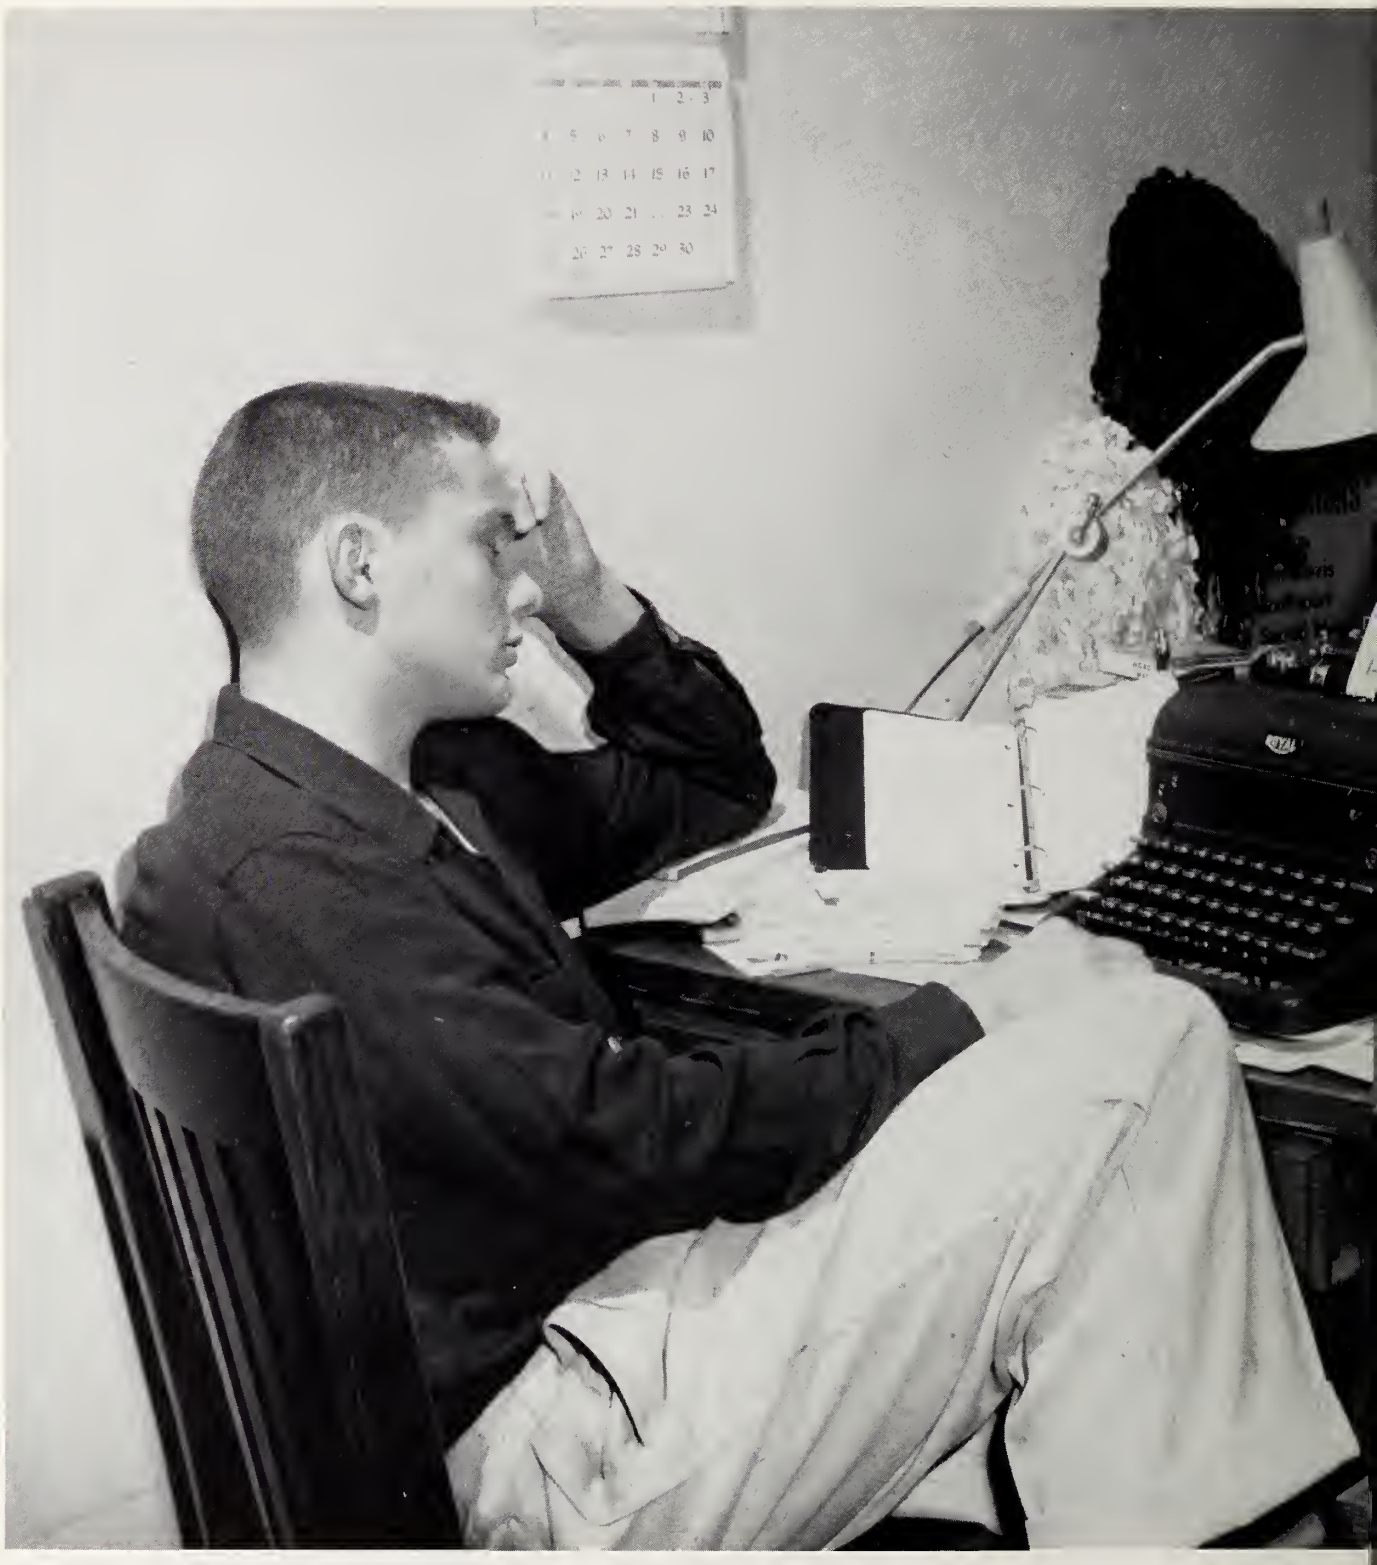
A typical scene at the end of each six weeks period; Bonnie Hancock, Sharon Cazzell and Bill French all pour over their books in homage to that ever wonderful "A."

Make The Year Complete

It's certainly too cold for that top to be down but enthused basketball fans Judy Bailey, Judy Coleman, Sue Hatcher, Diane Stuvel, Mary Kay Gainey, Florence Steinkamp, Treva Brooks and Pat Domasco go all out to support their team.

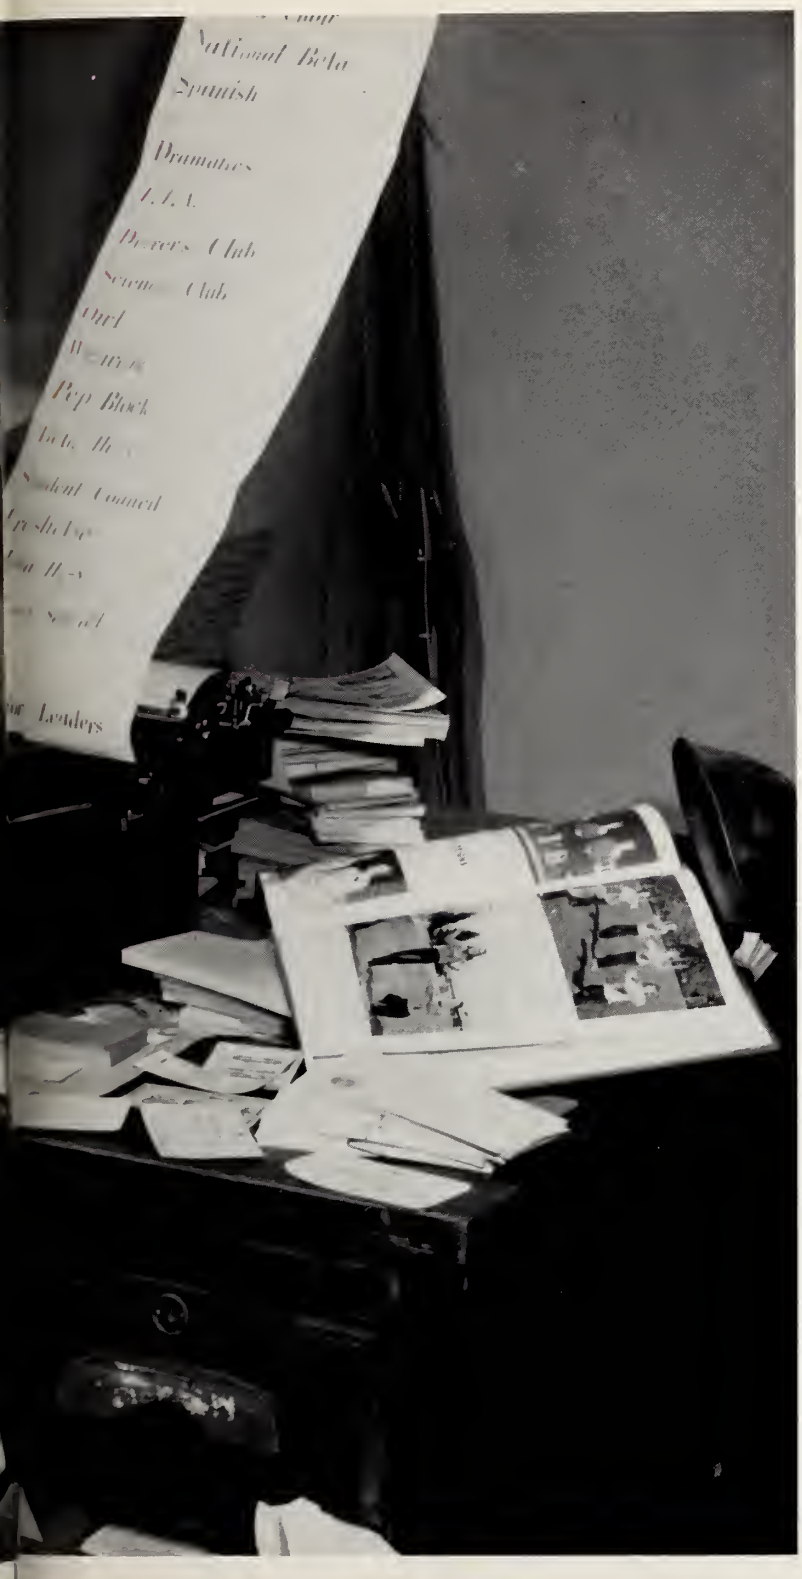
Lunch table chatter — a time of relaxing with friends and a general good time.

Every year the senior class hold shaker parties where members of the class get together and make the shakers for the entire student body to buy. The money goes for their senior activities.



Activities :

Offer Oportunities For



Activities offer opportunities for self-advancement through learning how to work and getting along with others. Many new friendships are formed as a result of students with a common interest working and playing together. They also open a way for student participation and expression not always available in the classroom. Through various activities a person gains that all-important sense of self adjustment and belonging. The half hour homeroom period was filled with educational and vocational interests along with entertainment for every student.

Self-Advancement Through Enterainment

National Beta Officers busily planned for the Sweater Swirl, the autumn dance, and the Annual Valentine Tea. Officers of the club, which consists of approximately 250 girls, were Dottie Robertson, secretary; Sandy Stevens, vice-president; Carolyn Robinson, treasurer; Doris Dicks, chaplain, and Janet Henke, president. Mrs. Harold E. Rodden was sponsor of the club and its activities.

Cafeteria Helpers Strive To Benefit

For the students with a sweet tooth the candy salesmen are always present. Selling candy this year was Nancy Reinhardt and not pictured were Judy Limbach and Anita Willman.

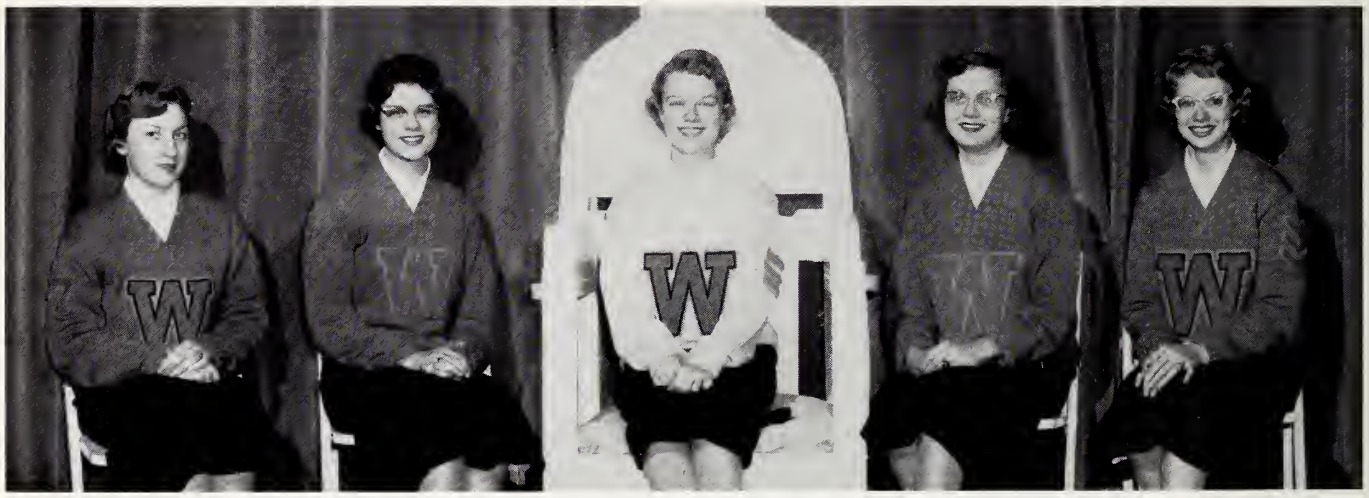
Athletics:

Spectators And Teams,

"We never had it so good" as we did this year with the superb work of all members of the athletic department. School spirit seemed at a maximun as the yells, lead by the Pep Block, spurred the Warrenites on to victory after victory. Tense last minutes of a game . . . shouts of joy . . . tears of sadness . . . cold breezes . . . hot coffee . . . hot stuffy air . . . cold Cokes . . . shouts of "Take it easy through this game" and "Go, Warriors, Go" . . . characteristic of the sports seasons.

Winning + Losing = Sportsmanship

Chosen Queens Rule At Homecomings



Attractive Warren gals who composed the regal setting for the Football Homecoming were Dee Tompko, Lynda Fitch, Janice Howard, Queen; Janet Williams and Doris Dicks. Even though rain fell in torrents this group remained as the only spectators.

Sweet Janice Howard reigned as the Football Homecoming Queen during the rainy game against North Vernon.

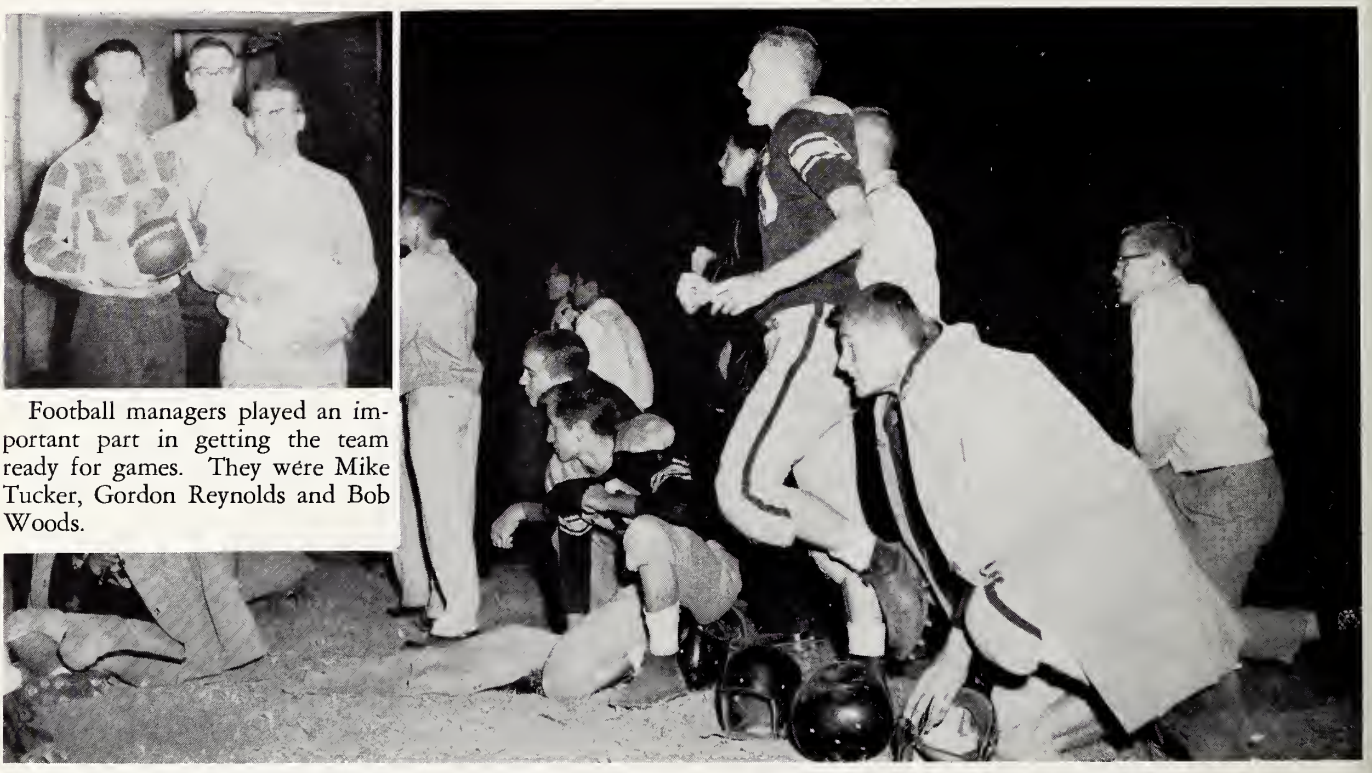
Cute Kay Ernst was elected to walk to the throne of the Basketball Queen on January 25. Crowned at half-time, Kay ruled over the remainder of the Speedway game.

Members of Basketball Queen's Court included Penny Bittle, Joy Albus, Kay, Janet Williams and Stevie Brunke. These pretty girls were fortunate enough to watch our Warriors clobber the Sparkplugs 108 - 70, breaking the city and county scoring records.

Football

Football Incomplete Without:

Football managers played an important part in getting the team ready for games. They were Mike Tucker, Gordon Reynolds and Bob Woods.



Tension is keen on the sidelines as their teammates unfolded a power play on the field.

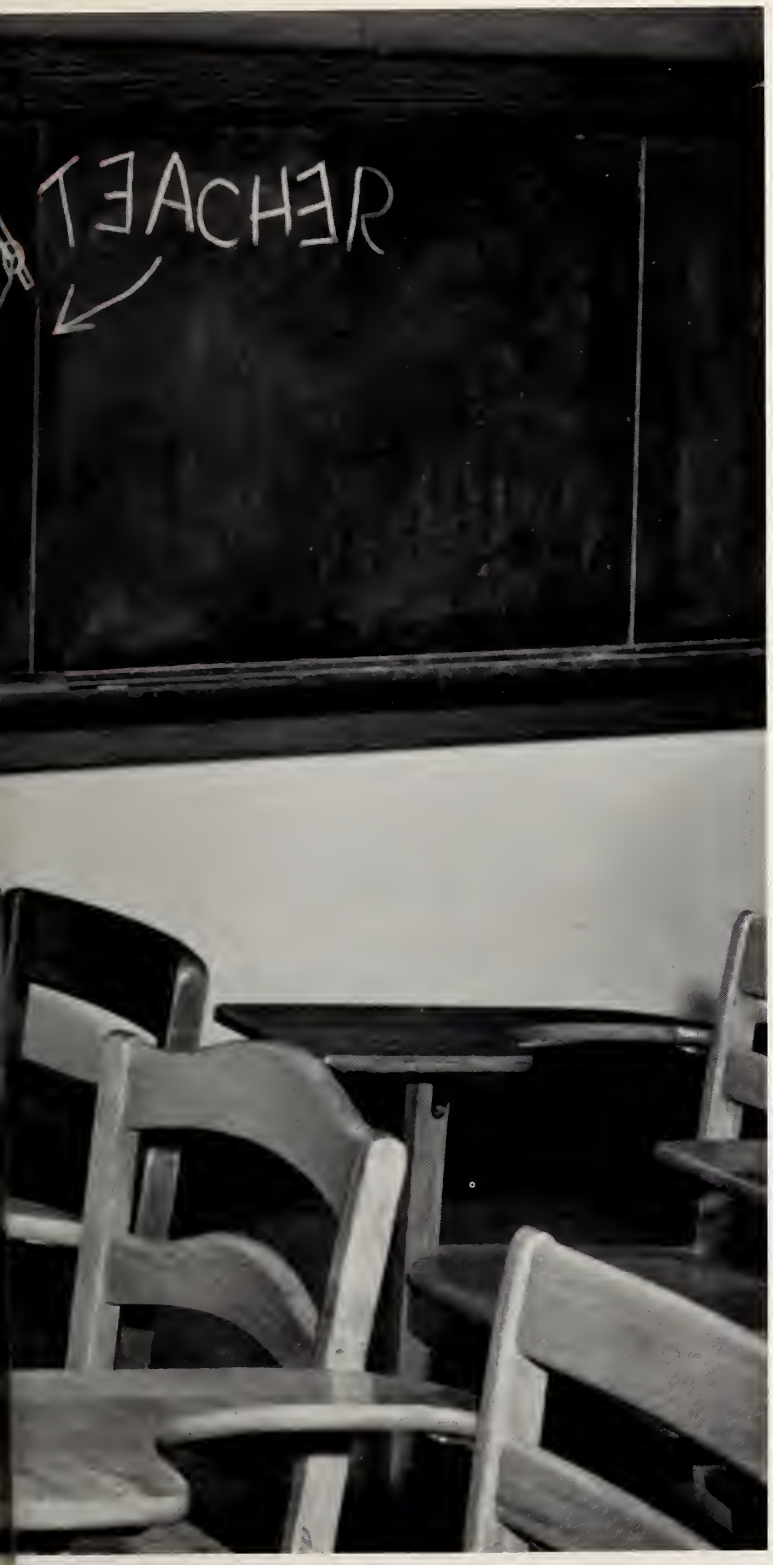
Faculty:

Regardless Of Difficulties . . . .



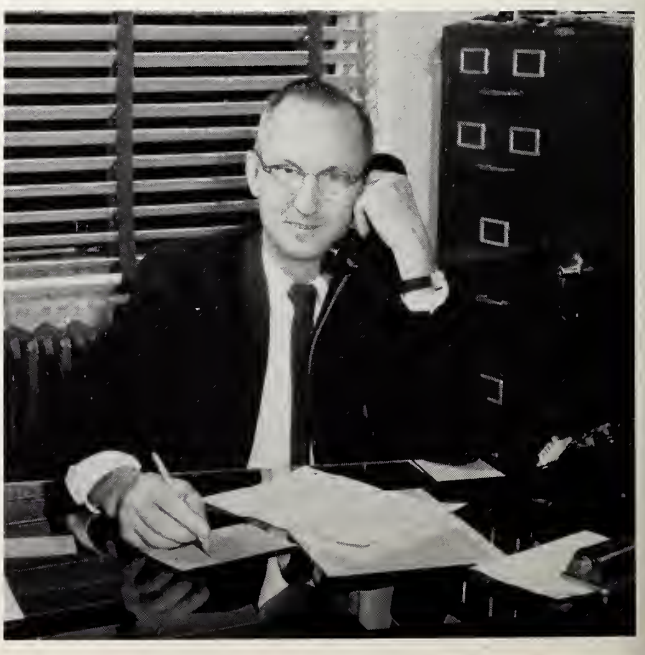
As in previous years, teachers and administration competed with the usual amount of pranks challenged in fun by students. Attempting to guide students in both knowledge and social maturity provided all members of the faculty with a full time job. In addition to their many hours used for preparing class work, supervising extracurricular activities consumed their free time.

Teachers Grin And Bear It From Day To Day

Guidance Instilled By Leaders

Guiding both faculty and students through the year was Mrs. Harold E. Rodden, principal. Her daily schedule included classroom supervision, curricular changes, planning of the school calendar and counseling with both students and faculty.

Mrs. Maude Siebert, dean of girls, keeps a file of all students at Warren for attendance and counseling. She also is in charge of managing the school cafeteria.



Mr. Obert Piety, dean of boys, discusses a problem with one worried parent. Among other duties he guides the students in scheduling their classes.

Skills Learned Will Help Us Through Life

Skills learned in home economics will help Warren's girls to become good home makers. Guiding them were Mrs. Ita Richardson, foods; Mrs. Anna Stricker, clothing; Mrs. Wanda Beeson, child care.

Shop boys learn skills now that can lead to a profession or a better knowledge of how to put together those do-it-yourself kits.

Their instructors were Mr. Wayland Richardson, drafting; Mr. Clyde Spears, printing; Mr. William Reed, electricity; Mr. John Porter, metal shop.

Janet Moore and Carolyn Witte learn the correct way to wash a baby. Having this knowledge now will make them more confident in the future.

Mrs. Mary Davis, librarian, is in charge of keeping the many books of the library coming and going in good order.

Good English Lasts As Diamonds Do

Correct English is not just a subject taught in school. It has become a way of life. These teachers guide us in that way: Mr. Louis Forderer, Mr. Joseph Smith, Miss Florence Caldwell, Mrs. Lola Pence, Mrs. Marietta Hasselbrinck, Mrs. Bernice Smoker, Miss Mary Wagner, Miss Mollie Ward and Mrs. Vera Petersen.

Music Creates Charming Beauty

What a job for a teenage boy! Bill Campbell assisted in Girls' Concert Club and found his work a pleasure.

At left, Miss Virginia McGordon and Mr. Robert Fleck played chop sticks during a short break in their music schedule at Warren. Miss McGordon and Mr. Fleck were both vocal instructors.

In the picture at the left, Mr. Cecil Havens and Miss Mary Breedlove discussed the score for an instrumental number by the band and orchestra.

Jam sessions are becoming more fun and more educational all the time. Here Ed Doty, Gary Gray, Gary Ruble and Jerry Steele indulged in one.

To Learn Is To Know, To Know: Life

Social science and safety and health guides us to a firmer basis for daily life. Our teachers at Warren is these departments were Mr. Ronald Roach, government; Mrs. Clarice Means, family living; Mr. Robert Carey, history; Mr. Wendell Roberts, safety; Mr. William Glesing, history; Miss Marjorie Forsyth, Indiana civics; Miss Sarah Shute, safety and health; Mr. Morris Campbell, government.

After burning the midnight oil, this is the condition in which Jan Kuhns returns from another day of school work and majorette practice.

Tools Of Trade Guide Students

Science's aim is to create a better way of life. With these tools and the desire for knowledge, our Warrenites will some day help —through science to make this a better world.

Dee Loux tries to explain to Sharon Cazzell that the correct way to measure the flag pole is by the shadow, not by climbing it.

Math and science teachers this year were: Mr. Rolland Sprunger, science; Mrs. Elizabeth Middleton, biology; Miss Cherry Sheppard, biology; Mrs. Edith Hinshaw, math.; Mr. Edwin Cooper, math; Mr. Howard Noe, chemistry; Mr. Perle Fisher, visual aids, science; Mr. Ray Clark, math; Mr. Joseph Mueller, math; Mr. Joseph Hayes, agriculture; Mr. Wiliam Lowes, biology.

Commerce Strives For Perfection

Commerce is always striving for perfection. These instructors are teaching students to do work that some day will determine the way businesses are run. Pictured are Mrs. Lola Hanger, Miss Joyce Collins, Mr. Edwin C. Baldwin and Miss Lokile Hicks.

Bonnie Hancock keeps her pen flying in an effort to keep up with 140 w.p.m. as Miss Lokile Hicks dictates.

Ralph McMinn wonders just what kind of speed the electric typewriters can really make.

Donna Terry keeps a record of her commerce papers as practice for future office work.

Carolyn Hendricks ponders the outcome of a bookkeeping effort. One penny can make a lot of difference!

Small Departments Are Musts

Mrs. Sylvia Butler, publications advisor, checks a small part of the loads of copy that filters through her hands each week. Her job is to help bring the news of the school to students and to help manage the yearbook.

Mr. Alan Meidema and Mr. Herman Nolte are driving instructors. Teaching students the correct skills of driving is tiring but rewarding work.

Miss Julia Faucett, art instructor, leads the art students in making all posters and decorations for Warren's many activities.

Mr. Vaughn Wood and Mrs. Coila Stevens discuss the rate of progress of their gym pupils. Mrs. Stevens began at Warren the second semester. Mrs. Rosalind White (inset) directed girls' athletics and Pep Block during the first semester.

Seniors:

Life Is Long But Time Is

Not the end, but just the beginning for the 1957 graduates. On June 4, 1957, seniors enter into the world to initiate a future of their own, yet unforgettable moments make their senior year tops. The paper drive—smudged faces, delighted smiles and the feeling of unity. Shaker party—excited laughter, piles of crepe paper, dull scissors and cramped fingers. Others were robe fittings, taffy sales, car wash; then senior week and the prom, graduation party at the Riviera, senior picnic, senior service and finally . . . graduation.

Underclassmen :

Students Look With

Each year of high school brings more friends, more fun and more maturity. Underclassmen found '57 a year packed full of thrills and excitement. Freshmen were made welcome and they started on the long path of learning. Sophomores felt a true part of the school spirit and were active in almost all phases of school life. Juniors eagerly prepared for their senior year by forming the first Junior Council, having a prom and choosing senior rings.

The driver of this car was in too big of a hurry. It looks like the easiest thing to do would be to move the stanchions instead of the car. But with practice and a will to learn, Warren's drivers will become safe and expert drivers.

Drivers, Journalists Constantly Hurry

DEADLINE—This is the most hectic day of the OWL staff's week. Screams, sighs, laughs and threats echo through Room 14 on this day. But when the OWL comes back smelling of fresh paper and damp ink, the joy of seeing your story in print and knowing you have created something makes it all worthwhile.

1957 Also Tops For

Without the splendid cooperation of the business establishments of our community, many activities would have been impossible. Through their backing, such publications as the WIGWAM and the OWL were made possible. They also helped in the printing of many programs, calendars and other items provided by clubs and groups. We have found it a pleasure to work with such businessmen who exhibit a sincere friendship and who offer such assistance.
